To whom it may concern, If it wasn't for grass roots opposition to large corporations expanding, there probably would literally be less grass roots. Not to mention tree roots too. We relocated to Jay the summer of 2016 with the thought in mind that it would be a nice quieter place to retire. Maybe even do a little deer hunting. That Winter we saw a herd of about 15 deer. Then some new neighbors moved in behind us and almost in the existing power line corridor. Following two years, 2018 and 2019 seasons, no deer at all. No sign, no tracks, nothing. Well the new neighbors brought all their relatives, friends, their relatives and probably distant cousins. Point being the more pressure put on the environment the less you'll end up getting in return. The same could be said about CMP who is very willing to put a lot of pressure on Maine's people and the environment for their short term gain. Then when they've made their millions and sell the company, what's Maine left with, eyesore and unappealing views. We are here like most of you for the duration and we have to get along with our neighbors, not mandate or dictate what they should or shouldn't do within reason for the greater good of the community. So please use what logic there is left in the world and remember once this corridor is put through it will never be able to return the land to its original grandeur. Please give this some serious thought before doing something your own children may have to live with.

Thank you,
Randall Hodge
