Little Tea Pond is located west of Greenbush Mountain. The pond has no major inlets, but a small outlet flows in a southerly direction into Tea Pond. The pond's shoreline is undeveloped.

Despite its small size, water quality in Little Tea Pond is good for coldwater gamefish; however, spawning and nursery habitat is lacking, so annual stockings of brook trout provide the fishery. Trout growth is good with no competition from other fish species.

Little Tea Pond is accessible via trails from either Tea Pond or Route 27. The pond is open to fly fishing only in the open water season and is closed to ice fishing. See the lawbook for additional regulations.
